Lab 3

CSCD 240

Lab 3

Requirements: all answers are to be produced by using ssh to login to cslinux.eastern.ewu.edu to complete this assignment. In all cases you should capture the prompt, the command, and the output from the command.

- 1) Clearly explain the difference between which, grep, and find.
- 2) Issue the find command looking for the file named ld starting at the root directory.
  - a. Assuming you are not logged in as root, you should get a list of errors as well as where the file was found. Capture the output and include it in your submission – you do not need to include all the permission errors just a few to get the idea but do include where the file was found.
  - b. Repeat the command (again not as root) – illustrating a method of eliminating the error messages and printing only what was found.
- 3) Find all files (not folders) in your home directory and its subdirectories, with size greater than 100 bytes.
- 4) In class we talked about the '-name' option for the find command.
  - a. Explain how to use the size option.
  - b. Issue and capture the results of the find command in your home directory that display all files that are greater than 1K. Do not display error messages.
  - c. Explain this command: find . -name "*.txt" -exec wc -l {} ;'
  - d. Explain this command: find . -name "*.txt" -exec rm {} ;'
- 5) Use a text editor on the remote machine to create a file named frost.poem that contains the following text:

The Road Not Taken by Robert Frost
Two roads diverged in a yellow wood,
And sorry I could not travel both
and be one traveler, long I stood
And looked down one as far as I could
To where it bent in the undergrowth;

Then took the other, as just as fair,
And having perhaps the better claim
Because it was grassy and wanted wear,

Though as for that the passing there
Had worn them really about the same,

Lab 3

- a. Use the grep command, capture both the command and the output, to finds all lines, including the line number, that end with a comma.
- b. Use the grep command, capture both the command and the output, to finds all lines, including the line number, containing the word as.
- c. Use the grep command, capture both the command and the output, to finds all lines, including the line number that starts with the word and (case DOES NOT matter).
- d. Use the grep command, capture both the command and the output, to finds all lines, including the line number that starts with the word and (case DOES matter).

6) Capture, creating a directory named lab3.

- a. Capture placing a copy of frost.poem in the directory lab3. There should be one copy of frost.poem in your home directory and one in lab3.
- b. Within your home directory, capture the grep command and its output that will recursively find all instances of the word I (case DOES matter) in all files that end with .poem.

7) Using a text editor create a file named myScript that contains the following:

#!/bin/bash
string="Hello World"
echo $string
```

- a. Try to execute the script with ./myScript and capture the output.
- b. Execute and capture the command that will change the permissions on myScript to be user executable without changing any other permissions.
- c. Execute the script with ./myScript and capture the output.

ajones77@cslinux:~/Documents/CandUnix/Labs/lab3$ cat myScript
#!/bin/bash
string="Hello World"
echo $stringajones77@cslinux:~/Documents/CandUnix/Labs/lab3$ ./myScript
./myScript: line 2: $'World\342\200\235': command not found

ajones77@cslinux:~/Documents/CandUnix/Labs/lab3$ ./myScript

8) Using the man page for env

- a. Describe (in your own words not with captures from the man page) the output of env command with no arguments.
- b. Describe the similarities and differences of printenv and env
- c. Capture a command other than pwd that will show your current working directory.

9) Capture the output of printenv in a file named penvout.txt.

10) Capture the output of env in a file named envout.txt

11) Capture the diff command, ignoring case and white space, on envout.txt and penvout.txt.

12) What is a shell variable and what is an environment variable in the bash shell?

13) In the lab3 directory create the C file named lab3.c with the following code.

#include <stdio.h> int main()
```

Aaron Jones

10/11/14

{
    printf("Hello World\n");
    return 0;
}// end main
```

- 14) Give the grep command that will start in your home directory and show the file names and line numbers containing the term “stdio” in all .c files in the home directory and all directories below the home.
- 15) Consider the following command ls – al | less.
  - a. What does the command do?
  - b. How does this command show advantages over ls –al?
- 16) Redirect the output of the command ls –lah ~/.bashrc to a file named details.txt.
- 17) Write a single command that can redirect the output of command ls –l /bin/cp to the existing file details.txt generated in question 16, without overwriting the file.
- 18) Provide a single command that can count how many lines of text are in details.txt created in question 17.

Note All is in the script and it will be attached like last time. Here are pictures of my output running in the terminal of that said script. Question 7 will be addressed separately from the script. In this document.

TO TURN IN:

- A PDF file - Name this text file your last name, first letter of your first name lab3.pdf. This file will contain all your answers.
- I want the question copied and then the answer to the question below it.
- A zip file that contains your PDF, all files created during this lab ( C files, scripts, etc).

You zip will be named your last name first letter of your first name lab3.zip. Turn in your zip file on Canvas 2014 cscd240  $\rightarrow$  Assignments  $\rightarrow$  Lab3  $\rightarrow$  submit.

Description: This script will be used to run all the commands in the lab 3 assignment. The question will be displayed first followed by the command, and then followed by the answer if required.
Feel free to email me if you run into any issues with the way the script runs, at ajones061392@gmail.com.

1) Clearly explain the difference between which, grep, and find.
```

=====
Answer: The difference between which, grep and find are as follows:
1) The find command locates specific files based upon recursivey descending the file hierarchy, by going through different categories. Such as, such as the name of the file, when it was created, and also by the date of which the file was created.

2) The grep command locates specific content of a given file. Such as a character phrase, a particular pattern within a given file.
3) The which command only locates a file that is in the user's path.

As you can see by the following details of each command there are unique attributes to each command. Such as find being able to locate specific

4) In class we talked about the '-name' option for the find command.
   a. Explain how to use the size option.
   b. Issue and capture the results of the find command in your home directory that display all files that are greater than 1K. Do not display error messages.
   c. Explain this command: find . -name *.txt -exec wc -l {} ;
   d. Explain this command: find . -name *.txt -exec rm {} ;

Executing part a of question 4....

The size option in the find command is used to search for files by the size of the file.

Executing part b of question 4....

The first part of the command in part c searchs the current directory for any file with the .txt extension. The second part of the command doesn't execute for me. But the second part would print out the line numbers for the .txt files.

Executing part d of question 5....

The first part of the command in part c searchs the current directory for any file with the .txt extension. The second part of the command doesn't execute for me. But the second part would remove {} if it were a file.

5) Use a text editor on the remote machine to create a file named frost.poem that contains the following text:
The Road Not Taken by Robert Frost
Two roads diverged in a yellow wood,
And sorry I could not travel both
and be one traveler, long I stood
And looked down one as far as I could
To where it bent in the undergrowth;

Then took the other, as just as fair,
And having perhaps the better claim
Because it was grassy and wanted wear,
Though as for that the passing there
Had worn them really about the same,

- a. Use the grep command, capture both the command and the output, to finds all lines, including the line number, that end with a comma.
- b. Use the grep command, capture both the command and the output, to finds all lines, including the line number, containing the word as.
- c. Use the grep command, capture both the command and the output, to finds all lines, including the line number that starts with the word including the line number that starts with the word and (case DOES NOT matter).
- e\n
- d. Use the grep command, capture both the command and the output, including the line number that starts with the word and (case DOES matter).

For the sake of this script I will have the file pre-written and will simply cat the file named frostpoem.txt

Displaying frostpoem.txt

6) Capture, creating a directory named lab3.

a. Capture placing a copy of frost.poem in the directory lab3. There should be one copy of frost.poem in your home directory and one in lab3.

7) Using a text editor create a file named myScript that contains the following:

#!/bin/bash
string="Hello World"
echo

a. Try to execute the script with ./myScript and capture the output.

b. Execute and capture the command that will change the permissions on myScript to be user executable without changing any other permissions.

c. Execute the script with ./myScript and capture the output.

8) Using the man page for env

a. Describe (in your own words not with captures from the man page) the output of env command with no arguments.

b. Describe the similarities and differences of printenv and env

c. Capture a command other than pwd that will show your current working directory.

Executing part b of question 8...

The similarities between printenv and env is that when running both without arguments it prints off the environment information. The differences between the both of them is that printenv only prints the environment information while env runs programs within the environment.

12) What is a shell variable and what is an environment variable in the bash shell?

Answer: A shell variable is a set of internal variables local to the shell being worked in. A environment variable are variables that are defined in the shell log after exiting the shell.

13) In the lab3 directory create the C file named lab3.c with the following code.
#include <stdio.h>
{
    printf("Hello World\n");
    return 0;
}// end main

=====
For the sake of this example I will pre-write lab3.c just like question 5
#include <stdio.h>
int main()
{
    printf("Hello World\n");
    return 0;

=====

15) Consider the following command ls - al | less.

a. What does the command do?

b. How does this command show advantages over ls -al?

Answer: The following command displays the output of the command ls -al and the advantage of using this over simply ls -al is that it only shows enough information to fill the screen/shell rather than the entire output.

16) Redirect the output of the command ls -lah ~/.bashrc to a file named details.txt.

Redirecting the output of ls -lah ~/.bashrc to a file.

=====

17) Write a single command that can redirect the output of command ls -l /bin/cp to the existing file details.txt generated in question 16, without overwriting the file.

Executing the redirection of ls -l /bin/cp to details.txt

18) Provide a single command that can count how many lines of text are in details.txt created in question 17.
